

To Whom It May Concern:

Jen Mintzer is my professor for Introduction to the Mass Media this semester at Temple University. I feel that she is one the many teachers out there that shines above the rest and this is why I am taking the time out to write such a recommendation. She taught me things that will be useful after college and has a very unique teaching style. I was already interested in the media field before I took Jen's class so after entering into it I realized how much more I wanted to be a part of the media world. I am going to college to learn everything there is to know about the broadcast journalism world because I am striving to become a news anchor one day; thanks to Jen I know a little more about this field.

One thing I love about her teaching style is that she is very interactive. Jen incorporated things into her lessons that applied to my college interests such as bringing guest speakers into the classroom and showing up websites that will be useful to us all later on down the road. On of the best guest speakers she brought into the classroom was a former news broadcaster from Comcast better known as CN8. The speaker motivated me to continue on with my dream and not to give up. If it was not for Jen's class I would not have been able to experience such an important lesson.

Another thing about Jen's teaching style that I really enjoy is her ability to learn about each student as an individual and not just another number. She amazes me for many reasons. There are over forty students in my class and she knows everyone by name. She is able to interact with all of us every class and still manage to teach us a new lesson. Jen's is able to show us examples about whatever we ask her and if she dose not have an example she will find one and e-mail it back to the entire class. She has done this on several occasions and all of her examples have been very helpful.

Overall I feel Jen Mintzer is very fortunate. She is one of the select few out there who is in a field where she belongs. Many people have jobs their whole lives that they are not good at; Jen on the other hand is only in her twenties and has a job she is great at. She is a wonderful professor and I hope that she continues sharing her knowledge with students for years to come. I hope I was helpful in informing you about Jen's teaching style if you have any questions you can always contact me at ingramlindy@hotmail.com or call me at 856- 217- 9596.
